Invitation to Exhibit

The Oregon Water Conference 2011
Evaluating and Managing Water Resources in a Climate of Uncertainty
May 24-25, 2011
CH2M Hill Alumni Center
Oregon State University
Corvallis, OR

On behalf of the Oregon Sections of American Water Resources Association and American Institute of Hydrology, the organizing committee, and the sponsoring organizations, we invite you to exhibit at the 2011 Oregon Water Conference and participate in discussions concerning one of the most important issues facing the world today: the evaluation and management of water resources in a climate of uncertainty.

The Oregon Water Conference 2011 will convene on May 24-25, 2011, at Oregon State University. Oregon and the rest of the Pacific Northwest face an uncertain water future. Not only will the climate itself be uncertain, but also the political, social, legal, economic and regulatory climates. What will climate change produce in the way of hydro ecological changes? How much will population change, perhaps fueled by climate refugees, stress our water resources? What will the regulatory climate embody? Will a revised Columbia River Treaty with Canada encompass more than power generation and flood control? Do we need a Columbia Basin Compact to cope with future shortages? Will the area see more in the way of regional water management agencies, perhaps straddling state lines? Can the prior appropriation doctrine adapt to the future? Will exempt wells remain ‘exempt’? Do we know how much water will be available?
